Unfinished Business

Attorney Russ Balthis was present to discuss changes that were made to the proposed TIF Legislation and recommendations for moving forward with the 5 pieces of legislation. Mr. Balthis said in the "whereas clauses", it is noted that the County had objected and gave the date of that objection. The purpose of that is just to create the record and to document that and make sure it's recorded in the legislation. A change in the distribution section which provides for the County compensation that is provided for in the TIF. Council may recall that if the County objects, they have a right to certain compensation. And at the last meeting, the City wanted to take a little bit of time to work with the County, to understand exactly what they were looking for. Brecksville Administration and its Legal representatives talked with the County, and what they're looking for is in years 11 to 30 of the TIF, 50 % of the funds that the County would have otherwise received had the property not been TIF'd they're entitled to keep.

That means that the first 10 years, the City will receive the full amount of the TIF. This is a non -school TIF, so not including the school portions. But the city will receive everything it would in the first 10 years, and then in years 11 through 30, the County will have the right to retain and receive 50 % of what they would otherwise own.

Mr. Balthis said there are five pieces of legislation pending. The recommendation Mr. Balthis has is the last two TIF's for consideration today would be to not consider those at this time. The reason being is when those projects come, the development will happen, and at that time we would renegotiate with the County, Brecksville could consider the TIF again, and at that time they may or may not object and it could be considered in the future. In conversations with the County, Mr. Balthis said the County's view is that the county is having some financial challenges at this time, so they want to get the objection on the record. They did communicate that in years 8, 9, 10, of the TIF they would be open to having a discussion again and maybe not exercise their rights under years 11 through 30. In order for them to preserve those rights, that's why the County made that objection.

Law Director Matty confirmed Mr. Balthis is recommending Council consider the first three TIF Ordinances on the agenda today, and hold off on considering the final two until the development is less speculative. Law Director Matty asked if Council should table the legislation indefinitely or should the legislation be rejected at this time.

Mr. Balthis said he would recommend voting them down now and they can be brought at a later date if desired.
